FLONZALEY QUARTET TO PLAY IN MEAD CHAPEL ON NOV. 10

Concert Is First Of Entertainment Course Series

FOUNDED IN 1902

Considered Leaders in String Quartet Field

By H. G. O.

A concert by the Flonzaley Quartet, the foremost musical organization of its kind in the world will be the opening number of the entertainment course in Mead Memorial Chapel on Nov. 10. The series of concerts this year have been arranged by a special Entertainment Committee appointed by the faculty. Prof. L. J. Hathaway is chairman of the committee.

The word Flonzaley is a combination of Italian and old French, which may be translated "brooklet"—"flon" in the Swiss Baudois dialect meaning river and "Flonzaley" being its diminutive. It is, beside being the name of the quartet, also the name of a villa on Lake Geneva, which belonged to Mr. Edward J. de Coppet, the founder of the oragnization. The chateau Flonzaley was for years the mecca of all great musicians, and here on an afternoon, we might chance to see Paderewski or Marcella Sembrich, or years ago, Adelina Patti, as the guests of Mr. Coppet, all formulating and perfecting the interpretations which were to make them famous thruout the world. It was in such an atmosphere of the noblest art, that the Flonzaleys came into being.

For years, Mr. de Coppet had been interested in chamber-music, and in New York, it had been his custom to engage a string quartet for the sole enjoyment of his friends. For this purpose, he engaged musicians of the highest rank. In 1902, his first violinist was forced to relinquish his post. Mr. de Coppet happened to meet Alfred Pochon in Europe just about this time, and proposed to him that he should come to America and join the other artists of his Quartet.

Mr. Pochon gave up his position at

Boys Build Big Bonfire—Brightens Blue's Backyard

Many Work For Hours Collecting Wood—Fire Largest Seen Here For Many Years

A bonfire, according to some of the oldest residents the biggest that has been seen on the campus for many years, was touched off at about 10:00 o'clock Saturday night behind the gymnasium just as the team was bearing home the laurels of victory from the enemy's country. Surrounding the flames, which leaped to a height of 40 feet and cast a bright light over the whole upper campus, a howling mob of youths did their utmost to let it be known to the town and to the world in general that their Alma Mater had won her first victory this season.

Not satisfied with mere cheering and singing, they proceeded to snake dance around the fire, led by one of their most respected professors. Still unsatisfied, the exulting crowd marched triumphantly down College Street, said professor still in the van, and executed another serpentine perambulation down Main Street as far as the

1924 KALEIDOSCOPE SIGNS TWO CONTRACTS

Contracts for the engraving work and the photography work were awarded during the past week by the 1924 Kaleidoscope Board. The engraving for the Junior Class annual will be done this year by the Howard-Wesson Company of Worcester, Mass., while the photographic work will be handled by The Gove Studio.

While a favorable report was made by the administrative committee of the Kaleidoscope Board with regard to the printing contract, a further investigation disclosed the fact that it would be possible to secure better work and at a price far below that quoted by the firm originally selected.

As a result of this fact, the Board failed to grant the contract until they had ascertained to a point of certainty which firm could best meet their requirements. It is expected that the printing contract will be signed within the next two weeks. Work on the photography of the Junior Class started last Monday.

FROSH MAY DEBATE UTICA HIGH TEAM

Wetherell Club To Decide On Plan Tonight

Will Hold Final Tryouts For Team To Be In Syracuse Debate

A debate between a team representing the freshmen and an aggregation from Utica Free Academy of Utica, N. Y., is at present under consideration, according to a report this morning by the secretary of the Wetherell Club. Although it has not been definitely decided upon, it has the approval of Professor Charles F. Abbott, faculty director of debating, and it is expected will be acted upon favorably at a meeting of the Freshman Class sometime this week.

The invitation to debate came from Mr. Harold V. Hartness, who was leader of the Hamilton College debating team which debated Middlebury last March, and who at present is coaching debate at the Utica Free Academy, a high school of about 2,000 students. Mr. Hartness writes that he has an agreement with Hamilton College calling for a debate with its freshman team on Dec. 8, of this year, and is endeavoring to schedule several colleges debates with teams representing the Freshman Class.

"At Hamilton," to quote parts of his letter, "the arrangement is proving to be an important incentive for debate work among freshmen. By announcing that a team is to be selected from those freshmen making the best apearance at the trials for the intercollegiate team, those in charge of debating at Hamilton are securing much keener competition for places on the college team. I might also remark that interest for debating, developed among the freshmen, bears early fruit in producing better college teams in the future."

"I have very pleasant memories of the fine debate tactics and the cordial hospitality which I found at Middlebury," Mr. Hartness added, "and am, therefore, very anxious to arrange a debate between our Academy team and a Middlebury freshman team."

At the regular meeting of the Wetherell Club tonight in Old Chapel, the final tryouts for the team which will

CONTEST INTERESTS MANY UNDERGRADS

Anonymous Contributors Enter Good Suggestions

But All Entrys Must Be Signed To Be Considered—Contest Ends Nov. 14

And still they come! For the past few mornings we have been delighted with the large amount of mail addressed to the Contest Editor, and the suggestions entered in the contest which will determine a proper symbol for Middlebury. Ten days are left before the contest closes and it is hoped that many more suggestions will be made so that when the selection is finally made, the committee will feel that they have given expression to the sentiments of the entire collge.

Some good suggestions have been made but by anonymous contributors, and we have been unable to fathom the cause of this desire to remain in the background. These same persons failed to comply with the rules of the contest which require that reasons for the choice of such a symbol be given. There is still sufficient time to make these entries as the contest does not close until noon on Nov. 14. All suggestions should be addressed to the Contest Editor, and either left or mailed to The Campus office in South Painter Hall.

Evidently some of the contestants have misconstrued the real object of the contest. It is not to name a man or a company of men, but the suggestion should apply to the entire team, and truly represent the spirit of Middlebury. One of the suggestions entered alluded to a certain man who has been prominent in every game, as a "Wildcat," and said that this was symbolic of Middlebury because this man displayed the same "courage and unfaltering attitude as the wildcat after it's prey." Another contestant compared another player's actions to that of an Eagle, because of his ability to fly over his opponents and in this way gain ground.

The regulations governing the contest exclude all members of The Campus board, and others officially connected with the papers, from participating in the contest. They are printed here in order that others who failed to make their entries may do so and not have them ruled out because they failed to follow the rules.

1. No more than two suggestions will be accepted from any one person.
2. Only persons who are duly registered students of Middlebury College may enter the contest.
3. In order that personal preference may not enter into the selection of the Committee of Judges, the suggestions will be typewritten and numbered and presented to the Committee. They will announce their choice to the Contest Editor of The Campus who will in turn inform President Moody of the winner.
4. The name of the person making the suggestion should be placed in the

Ashley, Drost, Papke And Company Play Most Spectacular Game Of Season--Walsh Stars For Norwich

NOVOTNY RECEIVES SERIOUS INJURIES

May Not Be Able To Appear In Line-Up During The Remainder Of The Season —Coach May Shift Line

Playing a brand of football that was big league stuff from start to finish, the Blue and White team ran the Norwich cadets ragged over their own backyard at Northfield last Saturday playing old "Victory" to the tune of 20-0. When the game started it looked as though the Middlebury outfit would have things pretty much their own way, but after three minutes of play things began to happen and it was then that Ashley had to leave the game. Coach Morey sent Kilbride in at left half, but for some unexplainable reason he simply could not get going.

To make things worse the Northfield ruffians started messing things up and after five minutes of play they had Captain Drost out of the game for the first half. This act sent Jakway in at right half and the real battle started. During the first period the ball seesawed back and forth from one end of the field to the other, neither side being able to get through they're opponents defense. More than once the holes opened and Middlebury crept through, only to be stopped a little later, when the cadet defense halted them within the shadow of the goal line.

It was during the second quarter that Jakway, starring at this time for the Blue and White, plowed through the Maroon and Gold line, gaining from 5 to 9 yards on every play. Kilbride on the other hand was unable to

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT TWO PLAYS

Anderson '25, Heads Coaching Committee

Performances To Be Given Nov. 8—Prof. Cady Writes Play

The Dramatic Club is preparing this year, for a season which augers well to surpassing anything ever before attempted in the history of play-acting at Middlebury, according to an announcement to The Campus this morning by Kenneth Anderson '25, head of the Coaching Committee. Not only will the number of productions be greater than last year, but they will be more complete as to details and more finished in presentation. The program thus far calls for the staging of two short plays on Wednesday, Nov. 8, and one full evening's performance, "The Admirable Crichton," by Barrie, on Nov. 25. Sometime in December the club expects to put on "The Story of a Star," a Christmas play written by Professor Frank W. Cady.

The two short plays coming a week from tonight are "The Clod," by Louis Beach, and "The Girl Comes Home," by B. M. D. Flebbe, a snappy comedy in three short acts.

"The Clod"

Cast of Characters

Thadius Trask	Lyle Houghton
Mary Trask, his wife	Dorothy Johnson
The Northerner	William Purdy
A Southern Sargeant	Marshall Hardy
Dick, a Southern Private	Earl Samson

"The Clod" is an extremely realistic incident in the Civil War. It tells the story of a woman who, in the end, is driven by ill treatment and insult to murder her tormentor. The woman is represented as a soulless bedraggled drudge without a spark of patriotism or pity. The interest of the play lies in watching the gradual increase of her nervous tension until it reaches the breaking point.

Plan To Hold Frosh Pee-Rade Saturday Before Game

Formulate Plans For Other Inter-Class Events—Hat Scrap Nov. 18

The annual freshman pee-rade will be held Saturday before the Tufts game, it was announced this morning by Eddy Kalin '23, president of the Undergraduate Association. The Sophomore Rules Committee will be in charge of the arrangements for the parade and will offer two prizes for the best made-up freshmen. These prizes are furnished by the rules committee from the proceeds from the sale of Freshmen Rules.

Together with the plans for the Pee-rade, the Student Council formulated plans for the other inter-class activities and appointed members of the various committees. It was decided that the Freshmen-Sophomore football game should take place after the 'varsity season had closed, and possibly on Nov. 20. The rules for this contest are under consideration and will probably be announced next week.

It was also decided to hold the hat scrap between the halves of the Vermont game on Nov. 18. The football game, basket-ball games, hat scrap

A WORTHY PRECEDENT

To ride eighty miles in open trucks and automobiles, with the thermometer sinking continuously; to sit in the grandstands at Sabine Field for over two and a half hours; and then to ride eighty miles back to Middlebury, demands more than pluck on the part of the seventy-five members of the Women's College who were in Northfield last Saturday. The response of the Women's College to the spirit of the times, without being asked by any person or group to make the trip, makes the action of the women of far greater importance. It was the most remarkable showing of Middlebury spirit that has been displayed here this season. More than this, however, the combined support of both colleges was the chief contributing factor in determining the result of the game.

The wholly unprecedented number of students which accompanied the football team to the Dartmouth and Norwich games, gives evidence of the existence of a fine type of college loyalty. It is a loyalty which does not content itself with going to the home games and spending a few hours and some energy cheering the team, but which is willing to undertake a long and sometimes hard journey to give that same support when the circumstances are more difficult and the need is greater.

The Norwich game brought out the spirit that is fundamentally essential to gain a victory. It showed unity. It displayed fairness. It was a brand of Middlebury loyalty that could not be equalled. When the leaders of the Blue had been taken out of the game early in the first period, the Middlebury support never wavered. They realized that even this calamity would not result in losing the game; for ground into every man on the team was the same spirit that predominated on the sidelines—the winning spirit.

The victories that were kept from the Blue and White team in the opening games of this season will be forgotten, but the victories that are to come will long be remembered. The team, realizing that it has the unanimous backing of the student body, of the faculty and the alumni, will enter the Tufts, Columbia, and Vermont games stronger and better equipt than in any of the previous contests. They will not only enter them with greater strength, but will, we are led to believe, return victorious. The attainment of this end demands united support. The students of Middlebury will respond!

It is, then, to be greatly hoped that this example of attending games en masse, will establish a precedent, not only for the remainder of this year but for coming years as well.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

It begins to look as if the management of the Dramatic Club was trying to outdo ye honorable basketball manager in the way of an extensive and difficult schedule. Two short plays the 8th of November and one, "The Admirable Crichton," November 25, will call for real work at once on the part of the coaches as well as the coached. Moreover the very nature of the Christmas production which is also being considered will make it a particularly hard play to stage.

Yet the lovers of the footlights are many compared with the few who lend their support to the various other activities of the campus; and so there is little difficulty in finding a sufficient number of would-be actors even though there may be few who possess real ability on the stage.

The Dramatic Club, however, is one of the college's institutions which deserves the united support of the student body, and the Campus views with approval the ambitious program on which the club has launched this year.

The Vermont Cynic saw what we said about Keady's outfit last week, but they have never answered our recent query as to what branch of work Keady's traveling athletes would have to enter when they started heading for the minors.

The Burlington Free Press, an unofficial agent and good friend of the University of Vermont, certainly slipped a cog when it reported that some U. V. M. athletes were made eligible by petition. That is a good idea. Why not carry it a step further and win victories by petition. A petition, we understand, is being considered that we beat Harvard.

But then this Burlington outfit thinks that they're Centre College's logical successors—so what's the use.

"The Middlebury Campus is strangely silent about that Vermont-Dartmouth game."—The Vermont Cynic.

Why they're so dumb they must think we're U. V. M.'s press agent.

With Morey's wards cutting caper the way they were last Saturday, the only hope Vermont has on Nov. 18, is a prayer, and like her ideal the "Praying Colonel's of Kentucky"—she better start praying three weeks in advance.

We wonder if they'll print the record of the trouncing administered to Norwich last Saturday by the Blue and White eleven.

Donald Tobin, a leader in the sporting circle of the Fourth Estate, is showing a large flock of professional writers just how it's done. His support of the Middlebury team during the past two seasons in the columns of his "avenue of escape," the "Middlebury Register," has been a great boost to the team, and his ability to surpass Casey and Grantland Rice on the Saturday's choices leads one to believe that Don is making a strong bid to fill Walter Camp's shoes as king of the pickers. We hope that he may—someday!

The Periscope

On Hazing

'Twas nothing but a small cocoon,
Its color chiefly brown,
'Twas fastened to an ancient stick
Which broke, and it fell down.
'Twas picked at by the cruel briers,
'Twas kicked by heedless feet.
The wind, he blew it high and low,
It suffered cold and heat.

But after all this sad abuse
It startled the whole world,
Showing it had a little life
It's chrysalis unfurled.
What was inside this strange dull thing?
What kind of creature he?
A full-fledged gorgeous butterfly
As handsome as could be.

Each butterfly has its own dull stage,
The Soph has his pea-green,
And everything that's gorgeous now
A troubled past has seen.
To be a true-blue Sophomore
Thru hazing one must go.
It's a necessary evil,
The Sophs will tell you so.

It may be that the female of the species have broadened their conceded right about changing their minds to take in ages.

For the benefit of all those having misgivings as to the whys and wherefors of ye ed's violent gestures on the Middlebury side of the field at Northfield Saturday, we would like to state that he was not emulating a hula-hula maiden. Nor is he an 'ex Cheer Leader from a deaf and dumb Institute where nimbleness of finger is required. He was merely signalling gains, plays, etc., to his humble cohorts shivering and shaking in the Press box, on the shadier side of the field.

TO RETRY PARRY FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Heading Burlington Free Press. What Next?

After sitting at that table throughout the game, we were ready to believe that Peary (not he of the Periscope fame but the original inventor of the Polar pie) was all wrong. The North Pole was situated directly under the press box.

Seeing as how Norwich has a cavalry unit and U. V. M. an infantry branch why not install an aviation unit here? We have plenty of "High Flyers."

If you have any doubts, consult anyone who was a passenger in that Hudson Super which made the record-breaking trip from Hanover a couple weeks ago.

"Our Foolish Contemporary" (apologies to "Life") "The Cynic" of U. V. M. states that we will have to have something besides hard names to stop them Nov. 18th. Thanks, Mr. Cynic, but we really didn't expect a forensic contest nor a mud-slinging party.

It isn't our usual policy to plagiarize but the following from the Williams "Purple Cow" is so fitting that we have borrowed it for the occasion:

'26: If we win next week we ought to win all the games of the season.
Also: Why so?
'26: Because it is the Tufts game of the season.

COMMUNICATION

Dr. Wright Tells His Thoughts On Bells As The Old Chapel Bell Told Of The Norwich Victory

Editor "Campus":

No one rejoices more than I when the bell on the Old Chapel rings out a victory. It is a fine old custom and one that I trust will never be given up, though personally I feel that this bell and no other should have that special function, and that the chimes are cheapened by indiscriminate use. "In nothing too much," however, is an equally fine old maxim, and I submit that fifteen minutes of steady ringing should suffice to convey to even the densest intellect in our college group a thorough understanding of what it is all about. After that the thing loses its joyous spontaneity, its "first fine, careless rapture," and becomes perfunctory, like the artificial, record-breaking demonstrations of great political conventions. If we won a game only once in a decade or two, this hour-after-hour persistence might have more justification, but surely we are not such strangers to success.

The tintinnabulation of Saturday night sent my mind wandering into distant times and far places. It has been said that you can learn a good deal about a man by taking note of the things he laughs at; I wonder whether you can learn anything about a college by taking note of what it rings its bells for.

I remember having read that at the University of Louvain, in the Middle Ages, whenever a college produced a Primus—one who attained a "first-class" in competitive examinations for the mastership—the students were given a three days' holiday, during which the bell was rung continuously day and night. That, again, seems to me like the overdoing of a good thing, but it shows, at all events, the store they set by scholarship; I do not recall that our bell was rung when Rhodes Scholarships were won, in academic competition, by Holt and Olmsted and Bosworth and Penniman and Gollnick—the recognized and hence coveted goals of student effort seem somehow to have changed.

In the winter of 1912 we spent a day in Port of Spain, the capital city of Trinidad in the West Indies. In the course of it we visited Queen's Royal College, where we found a holiday in full swing. Some months before, the annual competitive examinations had been held in the Colonial colleges to determine what students should be given Colonial scholarships that year in the great English universities. The papers had been sent to England for marking, and that morning a ship of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co.—our own steamer, in fact, which we had boarded at Barbados—had brought a report of the success of certain competitors in Queen's Royal. In the chapel, on beautiful tablets, were carved the names of the winners in preceding years, and to have his name placed upon that list is the supreme honor to which a Queen's Royal man can look forward, and the highest service he can render his Alma Mater. No wonder the bells of the college rang and a holiday was decreed! And I thought, as I recalled the day, that they foster better than we do, down there in Trinidad, as they fostered better in old Louvain, a remembrance in their students' minds of a college's prime purpose—of what, forget it as we may, a college is really for.

And as I mused on this problem of relative values, the fire burned—and the old bell kept on ringing.

VERMONT HARRIERS BOW TO BLUE TEAM

Local Cross-Country Team Wins State Championship—Score 28-27

Although a Vermont man came across the line first in the Middlebury-U. V. M. Cross Country meet on the Triangle Course last Saturday afternoon, the total strength of the Blue and White harriers overcame the set back and won the meet by the bare margin of one point, the score being 28-27. During the entire distance Rowe of U. V. M. led the 10 participants in the event, and crossed the tape after running 33 minutes and 36 seconds. Cook '24, was the first Middlebury man to place, coming in second. His time was 34 minutes and 25 seconds. The meet was originally carded as a triangular event with Norwich University represented, but as they have no cross country team this year, the state championship in this sport goes to Middlebury.

The team showed great power throughout and displayed remarkable ability in keeping up with the fast Burlington delegation. A speedy finish by Palmer who came in sixth really was responsible for the local team's success. When Ludthope, who came in seventh for U. V. M. came past the Chemistry building he was ten yards ahead of Palmer with 100 yards to go. A sprint by the local boy brought him in about a yard ahead of his opponent and the one point difference decided the meet in favor of Middlebury.

PARABLES SUBJECT OF VESPER SERVICE

Rev. W. B. Lusk Speaker at Sunday Service

Students Should Be Conscious of Responsibilities, He Says

"There was once an impressive, effective and wonderful teacher, Jesus, and what he had to teach was so profound and so simple that it was like the speech of a child," said Rev. W. B. Lusk of Christ Episcopal Church, at the vespers service last Sunday afternoon. "Students want to know," he continued, "the method of this effective teacher. It was simply that God cares for everyone, that God does not discriminate.

"Jesus taught by parables or stories through which there was shining a white thread of morality. And this thread taught the responsibility of every man to do his best in life. Men must do their best with what God gives them. The idea that all is done for us in religion and that we have nothing to do for ourselves is wrong.

"There is faith, but we have got to work. We go to college with the opportunity to make something of our lives. That should be our motive in coming. Our families, the faculty, the trustees, athletics, scholarship and the maintenance of fine traditions expect something of us; God expects something of us.

"On your attitude toward great and beautiful things, depends what you make of your life. There is your attitude towards God. You do not need to be afraid of him. God cares for us and wants us to do our best in life. It takes courage to do anything worth while. Timid people did not win the World war, and timid people are doing nothing in the great reconstruction of the world.

"Be conscious of your responsibility," concluded the speaker. "Fit yourselves for service. Service is the watch word of this world. We should bend our efforts to better the equipment God has given us. We should multiply our talents. It is when we are going forward, living for God, that we are going to enter into the real joy of religion."

BLUE HARRIERS TO MEET AT HANOVER SATURDAY

The last Cross Country meet of the season will be held Saturday at Dartmouth. There will be no try-outs for this meet, the men being chosen from the U. V. M. meet last Saturday. Coach Brown is trying to arrange to have the meet Friday, so that the men who participate, will be able to see the Middlebury-Tufts game Saturday, but it is not thought probable that it can be so arranged.

GLEE CLUB WILL SING IN BARRE ON DEC. 12

Prof. Bonney Makes Announcement At Last Friday's Rehearsal—Prof. Larsen Leader

The first Glee Club practice of the year was held Friday evening in the Women's Club rooms with an attendance of twenty-six men. Present indications are that the Glee Club will be the best the college has had in several years.

Professor Luther I. Bonney, faculty manager of the club, was much encouraged by the number of candidates that turned out, and announced that the club would appear first in Barre on December 12. He hopes to take the club to Montpelier, Waterbury and St. Johnsbury on the same trip but has arranged nothing definite with the latter towns. A more extended trip for a later date is also under consideration, the details of which will be announced in a later issue.

Professor Alfred I. Larsen, who is to lead the club, began drilling the individual parts immediately and emphasized the need of the members learning their parts thoroughly outside the regular rehearsals, which will convene every Tuesday and Friday night, Professor Bonney having charge of the Tuesday night rehearsal.

From The Sidelines

Over 75 Co-eds were in the stands when the game started. God bless 'em!

The Norwich men were also interested in the co-ed representation for the only question they asked was: "How many women are coming over for the game?"

The girls' cheering section favored us with a song which was mighty good. It must have been a new one composed by them for we hadn't heard it before.

While Norwich was calling signals, some one from the Middlebury section called out; "Give 'em SQUADS RIGHT!"

The Norwich men looked imposing in their olive drab as they marched down behind their band and formed an "N" before taking their places in the stands.

Napoleon the 71st viewed the battle from the top of the ridge on his dappled steed.

While Rosenthal of Norwich was reposing blissfully on the field, Mike Papke's kidney-pads were loose and flapping and someone piped: "Tie up your wings, Mike."

We judge that after Stan Ashley's brilliant playing last Saturday, Norwich is asking the same question Dartmouth propounded: "Who is this guy Ashley?" Stan sure did shake a pair of mean insteps when he got started.

Rosenthal is reported as having a new trick—he gets down on a punt and blows the ball back!

Our Frosh Philosopher says: "We don't mind our pea-greens after seeing those N. U. "rookies" going around with their hands looking like the fins of a fish."

Brownie needed a ball and chain or an anchor instead of a stick to hold his position as linesman with the tall N. U. man, dubbed by Head-Linesman Swaffield the "Statue of Liberty."

In the third quarter a Middlebury rooter yelled: "Let's give a long Norwich for the Referee."

"Rip" Gallagher also followed Moynihan's tactics during the game and attempted in no uncertain way to teach one of the Norwich players something about the "Manly Art of Self-Defense."

PRES. AND DEAN TO BE AT COLLEGE CONFERENCE

President Paul D. Moody and Dean E. J. Wiley will represent Middlebury at the fall meeting of the Association of New England Colleges at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., Friday and Saturday of this week.

It will be remembered that it was at the first meeting of this association last April that sweeping changes were made in the athletics of New England colleges, especially in regard to the hiring of coaches.

Student Volunteer Sect. Speaks At Y. W. Meeting

Tells Of The Organization And Purpose Of The Volunteer Movement —Defines "World Christian"

Miss Edith Sanderson, traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, was the speaker at the meeting of the Y. W. C. A. last Friday evening. Miss Sanderson began her talk with an explanation of the organization and purpose of the Student Volunteer Movement and emphasized the need of christian missionaries for foreign landsand the contributions that foreign lands could make to christianity. Miss Sanderson closed with a discussion of the "world christian" which she defined as one who is socially just, intellectually straight, physically fit, morally sound and spiritually alive.

As usual Connie Moynihan's "dukes" went up with his good old Irish temper.

From the looks of Papke's trousers in the third quarter, Middlebury would do well to take a tailor as well as a doctor along on each trip.

A rally for the Tufts game will be held in the Gym Friday at 7 p. m.

PROF. DE VISME SPEAKS AT RALLY

Approves Policy Of Playing Large Teams

Says It Is Characteristic Of Middlebury To Tackle Big Jobs

At the rally held Friday night before the Norwich game, Professor H. P. De Visme received a big ovation when he expressed his approval of the policy of playing bigger, heavier, harder-playing teams than Middlebury can hope to put on the field.

"It is characteristic of the Middlebury spirit of undertaking big jobs," he said, "that we are continually playing above our class in football. Furthermore, it is only by tackling the big jobs that we increase our capacity to handle the more difficult tasks.

"When we have a football rally," Prof. De Visme continued, "it makes no difference whether we have lost every game or whether we have won every game, every student should not only feel it a duty to go to the rally but should really want to go and should not allow anything to keep him from going to the rally."

"Rip" Gallagher made a few remarks representing the team and the rally ended with a snake dance lead by Prof. LaCalle.

SMASHING ATTACK WINS FOR MIDDLEBURY—SCORE 20-0

make much headway and several times was caught behind the line of scrimmage, thus being set for a loss. In this period the Norwich backs seemed to come to life for with the ball in their possession they were able to plow through tackle for gains of 4 to 6 yards.

Toward the end of the period Gallagher was taken out, and this weakened the ends to quite a material extent. Leary who substituted for Gallagher played a stellar role and showed great power on defensive plays. "Jack" is credited with breaking up three attempts by Norwich to pass, and when it came to halting line attacks he was always found on the job.

The third quarter opened with Drost, Ashley and Gallagher back in the Middlebury line-up. Stan thought he would demonstrate what was coming to the Northfield outfit by running the kickoff back 18 yards for a starter. On the second play he gained 10 yards more and brought the ball to Norwich's 47 yard line. Two attempted passes failed and then a dash through center by Ashley set the ball 2 yards nearer the Norwich goal.

It looked as though it would be an easy matter for the Blue and White to work the thing all the way down, but the steering committee in the person of Papke thought better and a kick was attempted. The speedy Norwich ends hurried around on the next play and blocked the kick, the ball heading toward the Middlebury stands. A Norwich back was after it at once, with Stan close behind, and as they neared the stands a leap by Ashley placed him over the pigskin.

Capt. Drost on the next play dashed around right end for a 5 yard gain, while on the next play, a criss-cross by Ashley netted 13 yards more. The ball was now on Norwich's 45 yard line. Drost gained a yard followed by Papke who made 5 more. Then a pass Papke to Drost collected 27 yards. This play caused the Middlebury stands to break loose with a loud cheer, and from this time on the story was simply a record of gains.

The Blue and White worked the ball to Norwich's 6 yard line and a short pass, Ashley to Papke, sent the ball over. Ashley's kick added the point. On the kickoff Ashley received the ball on Middlebury's 20 yard line and ran it back 15 yards. Succeessive plays brought the ball to Norwich's 26 yard line. An attempted pass was intercepted by Walsh, the husky Norwich back, but Novotny downed him on the 25 yard line.

Then action started with Moynihan's fists flying through the air. The boy meant it, but the referee thought otherwise and imposed a penalty of 40 yards on the Blue and White team. Norwich thus invaded Middlebury territory but only gained 2 yards when an attempted pass was intercepted by Klevenow who dashed to the Middlebury 30 yard line before he was grounded by a speedy Norwich back.

Stan booted the ball to the Norwich 7 yard line, but on three successive plays the Northfield eleven only advanced 5 yards. A kick by Captain Walker sent the ball to their 42 yard line. Drost got under way on the first play for a 23 yard gain, and in three plays the Middlebury team had forced the ball to the 2 yard line.

An off tackle plunge by Ashley sent the ball across for the second touchdown and while he succeeded in kicking the point, an offside by Middlebury lost it.

The fourth quarter opened with the ball still in Norwich territory, and rapidly working its way toward another tally from the Blue and White eleven. With the ball just 28 yards from the Norwich goal, Novotny, who had been playing a spectacular game at end, was knocked out, and Leary was sent in to fill the berth. The Middlebury outfit just played straight football and covered the remaining ground, Captain Drost crossing the chalk mark for the final touchdown. Ashley's kick added the point.

At this point, following Ashley's kick to Hope who was downed on the Norwich 44 yard line, the Maroon and Gold outfit seemed to locate their attack, and started showing some rather remarkable football. Consistent gains sent the ball down the field for 49 yards to Middlebury's 13 yard line, when Daly, playing at full, connected with a Norwich pass and ran it back to Middlebury's 17 yard line.

The Maroon and Gold defense stiffened after a few plays and held the Blue and White for downs, Ashley kicking to Norwich's 42 yard line. The Norwich outfit seemed to think that their only salvation was in the overhead game and they attempted it again. Their first trial failed and their second attempt was intercepted by Ashley on Middlebury's 28 yard line. After a few gains, three line plays were tried, which gathered 19 yards for the Addison County boys. The game ended with a beautiful pass, Holquist to Drost, leaving the ball in midfield.

Ashley was by far the outstanding star of the game, although Drost and Klevenow played a high brand of football in the back field. The chief work on the line was done around left end, with Novotny and Potter playing the leading roles. Walsh did most of the heavy work for the Norwich eleven.

The injury sustained by Novotny during the early part of the fourth quarter may result in his being out for the entire season. It is thought that his collar bone is cracked, and a ligament in his right shoulder has been torn. The loss of Joe from the end will probably necessitate a shift in the line. Coach Morey stated this morning that he was unable to say at this time what changes would be made.

Although the number of new men to appear has been rather disappointing, according to present indications, the club will be able, under the coaching of Professor Abbott, to put a team on the platform which will truly represent the college.

FLONZALEY QUARTET TO PLAY HERE NOV. 10

the Royal Conservatory of Brussels forthwith and came to America. He found, however, that the outside demands on the members were detrimental to the best interests of the Quartet. Insufficient time for rehearsals was the greatest drawback. Therefore, Mr. Pochon proposed to Mr. de Coppet an idea which gradually developed into the present organization. It was his opinion that if four men could be found who would be willing to devote their entire time to quartet playing, who would be great enough idealists to forego all thought of personal interests, to be willing to work only for the good of the quartet as on entity, that herein would lie the germ of its greatness. Given such conditions, a quartet could devote itself to the best in art, with no other interest to divert it from the pursuit of its ideal.

Mr. de Coppet immediately recognized the value of the suggestion and set about finding the members. It was no easy task. First, there was the lack of monetary gain to attract; then there was the entire submergence of the individuality, and last, it was necessary to find four men of similar ideas and training.

However, the end was attained at last, and the summer of 1903 saw four men gathered together in Mr. de Coppet's villa, Flonzaley, to discuss the preliminary steps toward the formation of what has since become the foremost string quartet of its time. They were Adolfo Betti, an Italian, who had given up his position as instructor under Cesar Thomson at the Royal Conservatory of Brussels; Ugo Ara, also an Italian, who made the decision to devote himself henceforth to the viola, and who put aside his violin as the first sacrifice upon the altar of his ideals; Iwan d'Archambeau, the 'cellist, a Belgian, from the Conservatory of Luxemburg, and Alfred Pochon, the Swiss violinist above-mentioned. Altho of different nationalities, all the members belong to the Belgian school of music, a fact which has materially helped in gaining the unity of execution and smoothness of expression that is characteristic of the Flonzaley art.

During the eighteen years of its existence, the personnel of the Quartet has remained the same with the exception of Mr. Louis Bailly, the viola player, who joined the Quartet in 1917, in place of Mr. Ara who was forced by illness to relinquish his position.

In all this time, they have remained faithful to the high ideal which animated them when they first took up their work. It was this devotion to an ideal which prompted a close friend and admirer to give them a loving-cup and to have engraved upon it "Per Aspera ad Astra."

In the course of the pilgrimage, a car was met bearing home "Joe" Novotny, who sustained a broken collar-bone and injured ligaments in the mighty conflict. If an ear-splitting ovation can help in any way to mend a broken bone, we shall see "Joe" "up and at 'em" again this coming Saturday.

Of course large credit should be given his lordship, Max M. Savitt, for his exhibition of masterful administrative genius in organizing the event; also for his inestimable worth as a guide, demonstrated as he piloted the Senor and his sonorous band down Main Street. From a serious point of view, however, "Max" certainly had a great deal to do with the success of the bonfire. Many thanks are due "Mother" Mason for her generosity in contributing boxes, barrels, etc., for the fire and for her efforts in locating other material about town for the same purpose.

"The Girl Comes Home"

Cast of Characters

Roberta Shelden — Helen LaForce
Ginny Wayne — Katherine Gahagan
Edith Shelden, Roberta's mother — Barbara Conant
Mary Therest Conroy — Rachel Barnes

This is the story of a modern girl, in other words, a flapper, who comes home from school and completely scandalizes her family by her flippant behaviour. However, she is cured of her malady in a very ingenious way. In the second act, the girl's mother proceeds to act in a far more flapperish manner than the girl herself so that she is completely shocked by her mother's actions.
